How green are you?

1. What means of transport do you use to get around?

- a) It depends, but most of the time you get a lift from somebody
- b) The bus, you have the bus stop near your house
- c) Bicycle, even if you often get around on foot

2. You're in your bedroom doing your homework, the light is:

- a) on, it's not a problem for you
- b) on, only on your desk and when you go out you turn it off
- c) off, you have your desk in front of the window!

3. You carry water with you:

- a) in disposable* plastic bottles
- b) in plastic bottles that you reuse three or four times
- c) in reusable plastic bottles or a water bottle

4. You have to throw away a piece of paper but there's no rubbish bin nearby:

- a) you leave it wherever you can, you don't know what else you can do
- b) you keep it in your pocket until you find a rubbish bin
- c) you put it in your bag and throw it away at home

- a) Maybe it happened once
- b) Rarely, but you would like to do more
- c) Yes, you've done it often, also recently

Mostly a): Laziness wins

You aren't interested very much in the environment, especially when being sustainable* clashes* with easier alternatives. You can't be bothered* making too many sacrifices and changing your lifestyle. But it takes very little effort to make a difference, think about it. You can make small changes in your everyday life, that don't cost anything but can improve things, step by step. Try to do more... you can do it! And the environment will thank you.

Mostly b): On the right track

You are a responsible citizen and you care about the environment and its problems. It's not your main worry but you try to do what you can. Sometimes you aren't able to be as ecological as you would like, but generally you're environmentally-friendly. Remember that you can always improve and you are certainly ready to do it. Start now, it isn't too late!

Mostly c): Perfectly green

You have a 'green' spirit! You're an example to be followed: recycling rubbish, controlling your consumption and creating little waste are your daily habits. You know perfectly well that we have to respect, love and take care of the environment that surrounds us. You believe in a better future and you're very committed* to this, which for you is almost a mission to be shared with the people you love. Congratulations! Continue in this way: our planet needs people like you.

* Glossary

can't be bothered: don't want to do something clashes: (here) contrasts with, doesn't go together well with committed: dedicated disposable: something that can be thrown away sustainable: something that helps the environment

Summer Pudding

Even when the weather is warm and sunny people still love eating desserts and sweets. The important thing is that they aren't too sweet and rich but help us to cool down in the heat*. So, let's take a look at this delicious British dessert that's very tasty but also refreshing*.

This British dessert may sound strange to foreign people as it's made with bread and fruit! The fruits that are typically used in summer puddings are strawberries, raspberries, blackcurrants, redcurrant and blackberries. Bread you might say is for making toast or sandwiches, but it also goes very well in a dessert. For this dessert you need some very simple ingredients:

- 300g raspberry
- 225g blackberry
- 100g redcurrant
- 400g strawberry
- 140g caster sugar (superfine sugar)
- 400g bread

Here's how to make it:

- Wash the fruit and put it all (except the strawberries) in a pan with the caster sugar and 3 tablespoons of water. Heat gently* for 3 minutes until the juice from the fruit starts to come out.
- Add the strawberries and cook for 2 minutes more.
- Drain* the juice from the fruit and keep the juice for later. Add a little sugar to the juice if necessary.
- Cut the crusts* off the bread and cut it into thick slices.
- Put a layer of cling film* in a large bowl and cover the bottom of the bowl with the slices of bread.

- Put the other pieces of bread into the juice and then cover the sides of the bowl with the bread.
- Layer the bread on top of each other until there are no spaces left in the bowl.
- Pour* the fruit on top of the bowl and also any juice that is remaining.
- Put a small plate on top of the bowl and leave it in the fridge for a few hours.
- To serve the pudding, turn it over, remove the bowl carefully and take off the cling film. The dessert should come out whole. Cut it into slices and then serve with cream.

This dessert was very popular in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. It was especially popular in health spas as it was seen as a healthy alternative to desserts made with butter.

Did you know...?

Berries are very good for us and can even boost* our brainpower!

A berry is a small, juicy fruit. They are usually round, brightly coloured, can be sweet or sour* and don't have a stone inside.

The berry season is very short. Depending on the weather it usually lasts from July until the end of September.

The biggest berry producers in the world are Poland, Serbia and Chile.

DO YOU KNOW...?

What's batology?

- a. The scientific study of bats
- b. The scientific study of blackberries
- c. The scientific study of batman

The answer is on page 15.

Tokyo 2020

Tokyo is preparing to host the XXXII Olympic Games and to become the world capital of sport. They start 24th July and we expect weeks of thrilling* contests, victories and defeats, medals and emotions... all with the same spirit. The important thing is not to win, but to participate!

#Tokyo2020

Olympics: 24th July – 9th August

Paralympics: 25th August – 6th September

Did you know that...

At Tokyo 2020 there will also be karate, climbing, surf and skateboard contests – four sports that for the first time will be part of the Olympic Games.

It will be the second Olympic Games for the Japanese capital after the 1964 games. It was chosen in 2013 after beating the other two finalists - Istanbul and Madrid.

A city in transition

Tokyo is a unique city divided between skyscrapers that are lit up at every hour of the day and night and ancient temples that date back to more than 2,000 years ago. Recently, in view of the Olympic Games of this summer, it's enriched* itself even more in terms of sport, culture and public services, in order to welcome better the millions of spectators and over 12,000 athletes that will arrive from all over the world.

Sport between tradition and modernity

6 out of 33 new sports facilities have been built, including the

New sports centres, (even) more efficient railway stations and airports that are better connected with the city centre. A new railway line will link the two international airports of Haneda and Narita to Tokyo station, cutting travelling time by half.

The cycling races will take place in the scenographic* venue* of the Gardens of the Imperial Palace, a big park of more than 3 km which surrounds the ancient residence of the Japanese Emperor.

Olympic Stadium, which will host more than 300 contests. Also some of the historical sites from the 1964 Olympics will play an important role such as the Yoyogi Gymnasium, which was designed by the famous architect Kenzo Tange, father of the Japanese "traditional modernism", or the Nippon Budokan, designed by Mamoru Yamada, which will host the judo and karate contests.

"Recycled" medals

All the medals of Tokyo 2020 will be made using recycled metal from electronic gadgets such as old smartphones and laptops. The collection of the materials, which citizens and companies all over Japan have contributed to began in 2017. It's thought that tens of thousands of tonnes have been recovered which will be used to obtain 30kg of gold, 4,000 kg of silver and 2,700 kg of bronze.

Number 2 logo

In 2015 a logo for Tokyo 2020 already existed, created by the designer Kenjiro Sano. But it was withdrawn* soon after as it was accused of being copied from the Theatre of Liège in Belgium. The new logo designed by the artist Aso Tokolo, is a white and blue circular "chessboard" (which for Tokyo are the colours that best represent the summer): this particular composition symbolizes the harmony that exists between the various countries and the different cultures.

Two new friends!

The two official mascots of the games, chosen by Japanese elementary schoolchildren, are two lovely characters created by the illustrator Ryo Taniguchi. They're called Miritowa and Someity. The first name is the union between two words 'future' (mirai) and 'eternity' (towa) and it was chosen to inspire a future full of 'never-ending hope' for everyone. The second comes from the word 'cherry blossom' (someiyoshino), but also from the English word 'so mighty', meaning very strong.

Someity is the mascot associated with the Paralympics, the Olympics for athletes with disabilities. The name is a reminder of the great physical and mental strength that the paralympian athletes demonstrate in overcoming their limits.

Miraitowa is the white and blue checked mascot, while Someity is white and pink (to remind us of cherry blossom). Both seem to have come from the future to accompany the athletes during the contests and to make the adults and children happy!

These are the four logo finalists for Tokyo 2020. Which do you prefer? Explain your answer.

The summer season means music! British people love music and during the summer months there are some fantastic music festivals happening around the UK - from pop to jazz, from hip hop to classical music. There's something for everyone!

British music festivals

Glastonbury

One of the most famous music festivals is in Glastonbury in south-west England. It lasts five days and takes place the last week of June. More than 200,00 people attend this festival of modern music but also dance, theatre, comedy, circus and other artistic* things. It takes place in a big field on a farm and many festival-goers take their tents and camp there. It first started in 1970 so this year will mark its 50th anniversary. Many famous bands and singers play there and last year there was Kylie Minogue, Janet Jackson, George Ezra, Liam Gallagher, Miley Cyrus and many more. Many of the people who work at the festival are volunteers so a lot of money made at the festival goes to charity organisations.

The Isle of Wight Festival

This very famous music festival was born in 1968 and continued for two years until 1970. Many great artists of that time played at the festival such as Jimi Hendrix, Miles Davis, The Doors, The Who, Leonard Cohen and many more. So many people went to the festival in 1970 that they decided to stop it as the Isle of Wight is a very small island! But in 2002 the festival started again and takes place every year. Many famous bands and singers such as the Rolling Stones, Amy Winehouse, Paolo Nutini, Paul McCartney, Coldplay, Kings of Leon, Queen, David Bowie... have played at the festival.

Green Man Festival

This is an independent music and arts festival that takes place every year in mid-August in the Brecon Beacons in Wales. It's a four-day festival with live music, literature, film, comedy, theatre and poetry. The area is divided into 10 different areas and each one offers a unique experience. During the night there are bonfires* and secret concerts taking place, which add to the unique atmosphere of the festival. The scenery is amazing and one of the 10 areas, the Mountain Stage, is set in an amphitheatre* surrounded by the Black Mountains. The festival encourages people to be sustainable and to respect the environment and for this it has won different awards.

The Wireless Festival

It's a music festival that takes place every year in London. It started out as a rock and pop festival, but has now moved towards hip-hop and other urban music. At the beginning, it was located in Hyde Park in the heart of London but since then it's moved to another park in London called Finsbury Park. Since 2010, artists such as Jay-Z, Kanye West, Justin Timberlake, Rihanna, Bruno Mars and Stormzy have performed there. It will take place 3-5 July this year.

The Reading Festival

The Reading Festival (pronounced 'redding', nothing to do with reading books) takes place every year in the south of England. It was originally known as the National Jazz Festival and started in 1961. It's the world's oldest popular music festival that still exists today. Many of Britain's most successful musicians have played there in the past such as The Rolling Stones, Fleetwood Mac, Pink Floyd, The Cure, Radiohead, Oasis... The 2019 festival saw The 1975, Foo Fighters, Post Malone, Twenty One Pilots perform there. While the festival is happening in Reading, there's also the same festival taking place in Leeds, a city in the north of England. They share the same artists and performers on different days.

Interview with...

She rose to fame in the role of Daenerys Targaryen in the fantasy TV series Game of Thrones, which has transformed her into a star and a warrior both on screen and in her private life. Because sometimes the worst things happen when you don't expect them, and to overcome them you need a great deal of courage.

I.D Card

Full name: Emilia Isobel Euphemia Rose Clarke

Place and Date of Birth: London (Britain), 23rd October 1986

Profession: actress

Emilia Clarke

Recently you declared that you experienced a very difficult period because of a serious health problem. Do you want to tell us what happened?

In 2011, during the filming of the first season of Game of Thrones, I had to undergo* a delicate emergency operation on my brain. The operation went well but the recovery period wasn't easy. I wasn't able to speak, not even to say my name, as I didn't remember it. A tremendous sensation. I sank into despair*... my job, my dreams, everything that I wanted to be was focused on language and communication. I thought I wouldn't be able to go back to acting.

Your recovery was long and hard, but you did it. But the same problem came back a few years later... it must have seemed like a nightmare.

Indeed, the second operation was much more complicated than the first and the recovery was much more painful than the battles fought by Daenerys! I was very young and it was tough* having to face such a dramatic experience, fighting to survive day after day. In addition, I was also terrorised about permanent damage to my memory and my sight. But then I clung* onto the idea that I wanted to live, to be saved. Now it doesn't seem real that it's all over.

You decided to become an actress when you were very young. But it's been a journey full of obstacles that has been rewarded* by your determination. What's your story?

After high school I applied to enter RADA (Royal Academy of Dramatic Art), at LAMDA (London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art) and at the Guildhall School of Music and Drama, the most prestigious British schools for aspiring actors, but I was turned down* by all three of them. Therefore, I enrolled at the London

- Game Of Thrones, by now a cult series, is based on the books A Song of Ice and Fire by George R.R. Martin. It immediately became a cultural phenomenon and was broadcast in 170 countries.
- For the role of Daenerys, Mother of Dragons, Emilia Clarke won the Scream Award 2011 as Best Female Newcomer and she received four Emmy Award nominations as Best Supporting Female Actress in a drama TV series (in 2013, 2015, 2016 and 2019).

The actress founded Same You, a charity organisation that has the aim of helping and giving medical support to people who are recovering from brain injuries or strokes.

Drama Centre, where I graduated in 2009. At the beginning there were only small parts, very little money. While I was waiting for the right role I worked in a pub as a waitress, in a call center, in a museum... so I could pay for my studies.

And then... the turning point*. The most important role of your life up to then, the part that has made you famous all over the world.

Yes, it seems incredible. In Spring 2010 I received a call from my agent. HBO were looking for actors for a new series, in particular a tall actress with very fair* hair, silvery, with a mysterious and enchanting aura. I was a little short and I had... I have... dark hair but I decided to try anyway. I passed the audition to impersonate one of the strongest and dominating female figures ever created in contemporary pop culture. The rest is history...

However, in your career there isn't only Game of Thrones. You've appeared both in action films as well as romantic comedies, demonstrating your talent also in very different roles.

Thank you! In Terminator Genisys – where I had the pleasure of meeting and working with Arnold Schwarzenegger – I played Sarah Connor, a really tough* woman! In Solo: A Star Wars Story, the film linked to the Star Wars saga and focused on the life of Han Solo, I was Qi'ra, an independent and charismatic girl. And then there are Me Before You and Last Christmas, two beautiful love stories where you can see my more 'sentimental' side. But I'm warning you. They'll make you cry!

IN THE MIRROR

How do you manage with being a celebrity?

But I like meeting my fans and feeling their affection. I wear a platinum blond wig which makes me a bit different. I recognised my brown hair often helps me to go to a gigster! I'm not good at managing being

The GUINNESS WORLD RECORDS

This year the Guinness World Records will celebrate its 66th birthday and despite its age, never loses its appeal*. It's well-known all around the world and many people aspire to maybe one day breaking a Guinness world record. Read on to find out more.

Its origins

In 1951, the managing director of the Guinness Breweries, Sir Hugh Beaver, went out hunting in Ireland with some friends. They had an argument about which was the fastest bird between two in Europe. He discovered it was impossible to find out which was the fastest by looking at reference books so he decided to make his own book which would contain the answer and many more answers to similar questions. One of his employees* recommended two of his university friends who had a fact-finding agency in London. They were twin brothers called Norris and Ross McWhirter and were given the job of producing the first book of records.

Developments

A thousand copies of the book produced by the twins were printed and given away for free. It was a success and in 1955 they produced the first 198 page edition which went to the top of the British best seller list by the end of 1955. The two brothers continued to make the book for many years. They both had an encyclopaedic* memory and could remember many facts and information. They also appeared on the TV series Record Breakers and were able to answer the many questions that children in the audience asked them about various world records.

The book today

Still today the book is a huge success and hold the record for being the best selling copyrighted* book of all time. It's published in 100 different countries and in more than 30 languages. The book contains "records of human achievements* and the extremes of the natural world". However, the book doesn't accept all record attempts especially if they are unethical* for example ones that involve hurting or killing animals.

In 2008, the Guinness World Records created its gamers edition. It contains records broken for high scores of popular video games.

In 1976, a Guinness Book of World Records Museum opened inside the Empire State Building in New York but closed in 1995.

In 2005, 9th November became 'Guinness World Records Day' to encourage people to try to break world records.

World Records

Typical records broken involve lifting heavy objects, eating the the biggest number of food items in a time limit or the longest time spent playing a video game. Many of the Guinness World Record books also contain records by the youngest person to have achieved something. For example, the youngest person to have visited all the countries of the world is Maurizio Giuliano, a British-Italian journalist. By the age of 28 he had visited all 193 countries of the world. And the title of 'Person with the most records' goes to Ashrita Furman from New York. At the moment he holds 226 Guinness World Records. His most recent record was for having 26 watermelons sliced on his stomach in one minute!

OVER TO YOU

Which world record would you like to break? Write an email to the Guinness World Records telling them about the record you would like to break and explain your reasons why.

Artemis Fowl

genre: Action, Adventure, Fantasy

12-year old Artemis Fowl is about to go on a fantastic, fascinating adventure to look for his dad who mysteriously disappeared. Helped by his loyal bodyguard, Artemis will discover a secret world, a hidden ancient civilisation - a fairy world against which Artemis will begin a cunning* battle.

The film is a cinema adaptation of the fantasy series of books for teenagers published by the Irish writer Eoin Colfer. For the role of Artemis, the director Kenneth Branagh chose the newcomer* Ferdie Shaw out of 1200 candidates.

Free Guy

genre: Action, Adventure, Comedy

Guy is a cheerful and sociable bank clerk "stuck" in a boring and repetitive routine. One day, by chance, he discovers that he's a character in Free City, a video game (rather brutal) where the characters have incredible, action-packed* adventures. After the initial shock, he realises he's the only person able to save the world so he decides to transform himself into a "hero", making a big change to his life. He'll do it in his own way, without using force and violence, in a funny race against time.

The film is directed by Shawn Levy, the director of A Night at the Museum and Stranger Things. Guy is played by the actor Ryan Reynolds.

Also coming out...

Ghostbusters: Afterlife

genre: Science fiction, Action

In 1984 the very first Ghostbusters film came out. The sequel came out five years later. In this new episode some of the original cast returns (such as Bill Murray, Dan Aykroyd and Sigourney Weaver), together with some new characters.

Trevor (Finn Wolfhard, Mike of Strangers Things) and Phoebe move to Summerville with their mother, to a remote farm which they inherited from their grandfather. Strange phenomena start to appear in the town, and the brother and sister improvise at being ghost hunters, following in the footsteps of an unknown past, but also the legacy* that their grandad left them.

Monster School

genre: Animation

The story takes place in a very particular school attended by teenage geniuses. Some people would call them 'monsters' in subjects such as maths and science. The life of the students at the institute changes after the discovery of a portal* which leads to another dimension from which creatures (really monstrous ones) invade the school. What will happen?

Wonder Woman 1984

genre: Action, Adventure, Fantasy

In this sequel of Wonder Woman (2017), Gal Gadot returns to the big screen in the role of the super heroine from DC Comics (the same as Batman and Superman). We're in the years of the Cold War and Diana Prince (Wonderwoman) will find herself having to face a new enemy called Cheetah.
